Description:

The four forged metal panels use whimsical stick figures to depict themes of adult & youth interaction, community and family, compassion and caring and playfulness in the outdoors. The panels are configured to mirror each other with the negative space in the centre depicting a tree. An essential feature to this sculpture's design is in the process. Mild steel bars and plate have had every inch heated and hammered repeatedly, completely changing the starting material's shape. By doing so, the metal is drawn out, textured and formed from singular blocks to create the sculpture's individual components.
